RESEARCH STANDARDS

The Genealogical Proof Standard, maintained by the Board of Certification for Genealogists®, consists of five conditions by which genealogists assess the reliability and accuracy of their research:

- Reasonably exhaustive research—emphasizing original records providing participants' information—for all evidence that might answer a genealogist's question about an identity, relationship, event, or situation.
- Complete, accurate citations to the sources or sources of each item of information contributing—directly, indirectly, or negatively—to answers about that identity, relationship, event, or situation.
- Tests—through processes of analysis and correlation—of all sources, information items, and evidence contributing to an answer to a genealogical question or problem.
- Resolution of conflicts among evidence items pertaining to the proposed answer.
- A soundly reasoned, coherently written conclusion based on the strongest available evidence.<sup>1</sup>

While every effort has been made to meet the conditions of the Genealogical Proof Standard in this research, time constraints have restricted the research. This report relates the conclusions based on information in the records reviewed and cited within. Continued research may reveal inconsistencies or inaccuracies which could lead to new conclusions.

The words Certified Genealogist and its acronym, CG, and the designations Certified Genealogical Lecturer and its acronym, CGL, are registered certification marks of the Board for Certification of Genealogists®, used under license by board certificants after periodic evaluation.

RESEARCH QUESTION, BACKGROUND, & CONTRACT LIMITATIONS

This report combines the results of two contracts:

1. Discover the identity of Hannah Vardeman who lived in Baltimore County, Maryland, circa 1773. Find her immediate family and any potential ties to Vardiman families related to Johan Vardeman ( –1714/5), of New Castle County, Delaware.
2. Continue to pursue the origins of Johan Vardeman of New Castle County, Delaware, with particular focus on the family associates, friends, and neighbors, including, if possible, Johan's wife Margaret and the in-laws of Johan and Margaret's children.

The combined contracts were limited to a total of 45 hours, including a scheduled trip to the Delaware State Archives. A total of 40 hours were charged to this report.

SUMMARY OF FINDINGS

Hannah Vardeman was born Hannah Webster in about 1722, daughter of a Quaker. She was married three times before identified with the Vardeman surname, but a marriage record nor spouse's first name has not been found. The report assesses four potential Vardeman males for this union, and establishes which are most likely.

While reviewing men named Christopher Vardeman, the author concluded that another man of that name has been mis-identified. It would appear that there is likely a Christopher Vardeman who could be of the same generation as John Vardeman ( –1714/15).

A correction is made in this report to the location of the first John Vardeman's plantation (mentioned in his 1714/15 will). After careful review, it has been re-platted and determined that John Vardeman obtained the land from his neighbor, John Heally. A deeper study of John Heally found more about his origins, looked at his relationships with the Petersons, and showed that the next generation of Heallys lived close to the next generation of Vardemans.

Unfortunately, the research did not find the origins of John Vardeman or his wife. It did reveal a few more layers of possible avenues for future investigation.

This report will use generational numbers to clarify Vardeman men of the same name, for example, "John<sup>1</sup>" is John ( –1714/5) or numbers and parental lineage, such as "William<sup>3</sup> (John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>)" to indicate William, son of John who was the son of John.

RESEARCH DETAILS

HANNAH VARDEMAN

The original reference to Hannah Vardeman was as a witness to the will of Nathan Whitehead, of Baltimore County, Maryland, dated 30 January 1773. Nathan Whitehead left the whole of his estate to his wife, Margaret. Margaret Whitehead and Jonathan Woodland Jr. were named as executors. The witnesses were Cassandra Woodland, Amos Smith, and Hannah Vardeman (signed X), who testified to the authenticity of Whitehead's will on 16 March 1773.<sup>2</sup>

To trace Hannah Vardeman, connection was made through Cassandra Woodland. Cassandra Webster and Hannah Webster were sisters, daughters of Isaac Webster, a Quaker from Bush River district, Baltimore County. The chronology below shows a pattern of connections, especially as each of the sisters married, were widowed, and remarried. Alongside the sisters we consistently see the sisters together or in the presence of their brother, Isaac Webster Jr. Hannah is also connected to her father through ownership of the plantation named Wilson's Range.

TABLE 1: WEBSTER CHRONOLOGY IN BALTIMORE COUNTY, MARYLAND

- 1742 Samuel Gover, late of Herring Creek, Anna Hundred, Maryland, and Hannah Webster, daughter of Isaac Webster of Bush River, Baltimore Co., Maryland, were married on 11th day of 9th month 1742 at Public Meeting of Friends at Bush River. Witnesses: John Webster, Thomas Bond, Samuel Lawrence, Francis Middlemore, Edward Talbot, Joshua Bond, John Hall, John Paca Jr, Parker Hall, Nathaniel Richardson, Joseph Wilson, William Smith, Richard Gover, Nathan Rigbie Jr, Richard Ruff, John Crockett, Sarah Deaver, Ann Bond, Elinor Jones, Cassandra Johns, Mary Deaver, Sarah Jiles, Isaac Webster, Mary Webster, Ephriam Gover, Mary Gittings, James Lee, Elizabeth Lee, and Isaac Webster Jr.<sup>3</sup>
Hannah would likely have been age 21, which gives a calculated birth of about 1721. This aligns with a marriage between Isaac Webster [Sr] and Margaret Lee, both of Bush River, Maryland, on 2 November 1722.<sup>4</sup>

- 1744 Isaac Webster purchased Wilson's Range from John & Mary Willson on 24 January. The property was located east of the Bush River on a branch called the James Runn, adjoining a tract named Friendship.<sup>5</sup>
- 1749 Nathan Richardson of Baltimore Co. Maryland, and Hannah Gover, a widow and daughter of Isaac Webster of the same place were married on the 20th day, 2nd month of 1749 at a Public Meeting of Friends at the dwelling of Isaac Webster of Baltimore County. Most of the witness list was unreadable with the exception of: Joseph Wilson, William Richardson, Samuel Lee, Robert Adair, Margaret Lee, Susanna Webster, Cassandra Webster, Margaret Webster, Joseph Richardson, John Webster, Mary Webster, Elizabeth Lee, James Lee, Isaac Webster Jr, and John Webster [sic, 2 men by this name].<sup>6</sup>
- 1755 Will of Isaac Webster Sr, written 29 March 1755, codicil 3 May 1759, proved November 1759. Properties called Sedgley, Wilsons Range (to Hannah Richardson), Talbot's Forrest (to daug. Margaret Talbot), Best Endeavor (to son John), and more lands, ironworks, and slaves.<sup>7</sup>
- 1756 Nathan Richardson's will named wife Hannah and brother-in-law Isaac Webster; children and slaves also named.<sup>8</sup>
- 1765 Isaac Webster Jr with his mother Margaret Webster (widow), and the heirs of Isaac Webster Sr, deceased, including Hannah Richardson, Cassandra and Jonathan Massey, sold to James Webster some property and lands from the Webster estate.<sup>9</sup>
- 1769 Hannah Richardson was paid as an heir from the estate of Isaac Webster Sr, deceased, per the account record dated 19 July.<sup>10</sup>
- 1770 Cassandra Massey [widow], Isaac Webster [her brother], & Daniel Robinson of Baltimore took out a bond to administer the estate of Jonathan Massey, deceased.<sup>11</sup>
- Mar 1773 Will of Nathan Whitehead, dated 30 January 1773. Whitehead left the whole of his estate (not described) to his wife, Margaret. Witnesses were William Hyatt, Cassandra Woodland, Amos Smith, and Hannah Vardeman (signed X), probated on 16 March 1773.<sup>12</sup>

- Jun 1773 Jonathan Woodland & Cassandra his wife (late Cassandra Massey), served as administratrix of Jonathan Massey (a Quaker) in an accounting of the estate inventory.<sup>13</sup>
- Jun 1773 Margaret Webster mother of Cassandra Woodland and Margaret Talbot, sister of same, were interviewed. It was reported at meeting of Friends [Quakers] of the Deer Creek gathering that Mrs. Webster was not clear of blame for Cassandra being "outgoing in marriage" [marrying outside of the faith].<sup>14</sup>
- Feb 1775 Hannah Richardson, "Spinster" [single woman], leased out her tract Abbott's Forrest.<sup>15</sup> (see 1790)
- Oct 1787 Cassandra Woodland appeared before a meeting of Friends at the Deer Creek Monthly Meeting to acknowledge that she had married outside of the faith "many year back" and requested an opportunity for re-fellowship.<sup>16</sup>
- 1790 Hannah Richardson, "Spinster," of Harford County, Maryland, sold her plantation Wilson's Range "which was devised me by my Father Isaac Webster Deceased" and another tract called Abbot's Forrest at the head of the Bush River.<sup>17</sup>

Hannah, twice a widow by 1756, may also have decided to marry outside of the Quaker faith, as her sister Cassandra had done. Hannah's daughter, Margaret Richardson (of Nathan), was also removed from the Society of Friends for having married a non-Quaker.<sup>18</sup> The theory that Hannah could have married outside of the faith has merit. Although a formal censure was not found, it appears that Hannah had to appeal to rejoin the society of Friends before her death in 1806, indicating that she had suffered some form of excommunication, although the reason was not given.<sup>19</sup> A marriage record between Hannah and a Vardeman was not found, although not finding marriages is typical for the time period, especially in Maryland.

By February 1775, she had returned to using the Richardson surname in land records in Harford County, which had formed from Baltimore in 1774. No Richardson or Vardeman/Wardeman (or similar spellings) land sales were found for Hannah in Baltimore County before 1774.<sup>20</sup> She named no Vardemans or their relatives in her will made at Harford County in 1805.<sup>21</sup> There could be many reasons for a woman to return to a former surname: 1) the union with a Vardeman man was not legally recognized; 2) she wanted to rejoin her Quaker faith and did so under a marriage condoned by that church; 3) after Vardeman died/left she went back to a name she was known best by in her community (Richardson). Legal strictures about name usage then are not what they are in modern times.

Given the timeline above, it appears that Mrs. Hannah (Webster) (Gover) Richardson married a Mr. Vardeman sometime between 19 July 1769 (when she agreed to the sale of property as Mrs. Richardson) and 30 January 1773 (when she witnessed Whitehead's will as Mrs. Vardeman). If she were about age 21 at her first marriage in 1742, then her approximate birth year would be 1721. Her age range from 1765 to 1773 could be calculated as potentially between 44–52 years old. A Vardeman husband would likely be about that same age or older. Refer to the chart below for explanations of potential spouses for Hannah.

Potential Husband Christopher<sup>2</sup> (John<sup>1</sup>)? Not much is known about Christopher<sup>2</sup> Vardeman (abt. 1697– ). He was very unlikely have been the same as the Christopher “Vardaman” who, in late 1714, signed “X” (his mark) to witness the will of William Boon of Philadelphia County, Pennsylvania.<sup>23</sup> The wording of the will made by John<sup>1</sup> makes it clear that his son Christopher<sup>2</sup> was not “of age” (21) the day that it was written on 17 March 1714/15 (Julian Calendar double-dating, meaning 17 March 1715 in Gregorian).<sup>24</sup> A man under the age of twenty-one was not often called on to witness a legal contract, especially for another man living in distant location. He is also not likely the Christopher<sup>3</sup> listed above whose estate was settled in Sussex County, Delaware, in 1799. Such a man (if born by 1697) would by then have been approximately 100 years old, and more records would potentially be found to connect them over a lifetime of that span. As a possible spouse to Hannah Webster, there is merit. If Christopher<sup>2</sup> lived through 1773, he could have been married her, even if he were over twenty-five years her senior.

The Other Christopher? Although less likely, there is another Christopher Vardeman to consider, which should be labeled Christopher<sup>1</sup>. This is the man named Christopher “Vardaman” who signed “X” (his mark) to witness the will of William Boon of Philadelphia County, Pennsylvania.<sup>25</sup> To witness a legal contract, usually a person was age twenty-one or older, and someone either a relative (not inheriting), close friend/neighbor, or an official of the court. If this theory is correct, and there was an older Christopher<sup>1</sup>, this would be a new source for investigation and someone potentially in the same generation as John<sup>1</sup>. If he did interact with Hannah Webster, he would have been significantly older than her, perhaps by twenty to thirty years.

and his wife's names in 1718.<sup>26</sup> John<sup>2</sup> died by 4 May 1733 (estate inventory), although his will has not been found.<sup>27</sup> Part of the inheritance, that not sold off to pay debts, was listed in a deed which mentioned the lost will and the names of "three" sons: William, Christopher, and Jacob. The sons were to inherit equally after the "Just and Lawfull Debts" of the estate were paid. The deed made in 1748 quoted this lost will and was a contract between William<sup>3</sup> (living in New Castle County) and Christopher<sup>3</sup> (of Kent County) to make over the remaining land to William<sup>3</sup>. Jacob<sup>3</sup> was not part of the transaction, but, significantly, neither was he listed as deceased.<sup>28</sup> Where was Jacob<sup>3</sup>? If Jacob<sup>3</sup> were deceased, the death would have been expected to have been noted in this deed. More likely, he waived or sold his right to the land in a separate transaction that was not recorded in court, an all too often occurrence in early records.

It has been speculated that Jacob<sup>3</sup> may have died after 1783 as a resident of St. David's Parish, South Carolina. The authors of this theory wisely stipulated that this was a tentative identification, as not enough evidence could connect the Delaware Jacob<sup>3</sup> to the South Carolina Jacob.<sup>29</sup> Alternately, it is plausible that Jacob<sup>3</sup> stayed local, lived in the upper Maryland area, and married Hannah Webster. He is another potential Vardeman male known to the author so far of the right age range.

Any theory that there was a relationship between Hannah Webster and any of the above Vardeman males is yet unsupported and should not be published until further research can prove a case.

JOHN VARDEMAN: REVELATIONS & CORRECTIONS

The ancestor, John Vardeman Sr of “Apoquinimy Creek” (hereafter John<sup>1</sup>), New Castle County, Delaware, wrote his will on 17 March 1714/15. It named his wife Margaret as executrix. His under-aged children were named as sons Johannes, Christopher, William, and one daughter Jane Margrita—the will later distinguished a singular “sister” to brother Johannes (this generation hereafter John<sup>2</sup>, Christopher<sup>2</sup>, etc.). The witnesses to the will were Capt. John Heally, Charles Ford, and John Danielly.<sup>32</sup> At the time of his death, John owned a tract of land which he bequeathed to his eldest son Johannes (hereafter John<sup>2</sup>). As “John Wardeman,” he sold the land in 1718 to a neighbor, Sylvester Garland.<sup>33</sup> Presumably John<sup>2</sup> was age 21 by the time of the sale, so he would have been born by or before 1697.

A theory for finding the origins of John<sup>1</sup> Vardaman Sr was that he may have obtained the land from a family member, either on his side or his wife Margaret’s side. The difficulty in finding this lay in the fact that the court deed book that would have shown the purchase of John’s land would have been in Volume D, 1664–1715, is now missing.

Research continued looking for potential leads to this. An earlier report by this author concluded that the land owned by John<sup>1</sup> was located to the south of a patent surveyed for John Heally in 1703.<sup>34</sup> Application of improved platting software and more research has now concludes that the Vardeman plantation was actually cut out from the 1703 Heally patent. In other words, John Vardeman obtained his land from John Heally, either by purchase or gift.

The discrepancy resulted from software error. The original platting was done using software called Metes and Bounds.<sup>35</sup> The new software used is known as DeedMapper.<sup>36</sup> The new software is a complex system to use, but does enable plats to be directly scaled to background maps. More importantly, when the land descriptions were put into DeedMapper, it created a different the profile (shape) for the plat than the previous software had. When the plat was recreated by hand to double-check, the DeedMapper plat profile was correct. That new profile changed the research parameters and how the plat could be placed in relation to the neighbors. As seen below, the land of John Vardeman (sold by his son Johannes/John “Werdeman” in 1718), borders that of William Dyer’s 1707 property and was cut out of John Heally’s 1703 property surveyed in 1703.<sup>37</sup>

JOHN HEALLY

John Heally was of some interest because he was known to have interacted at least twice with the Vardeman family, first as witness to the will of John<sup>1</sup> and next to the sale of the plantation by John<sup>2</sup>.<sup>38</sup> Also significantly, neighbors are usually a substantial part of an ancestor's life. We know now that there was a third transaction (lost to that missing deed book), when John<sup>1</sup> obtained his plantation from Heally. The land had been part of a tract called Change which Heally bought in 1695.<sup>39</sup>

Captain John Heally was a prosperous citizen of New Castle County, Delaware. He was born, place unknown, in about 1653.<sup>40</sup> His first wife was the daughter of Barent Egberts; in 1685 as John "Hayly" he petitioned for his portion of Egberts' estate on behalf of his late wife.<sup>41</sup> As early as 1688, John Heally was sitting as a justice on the Court of Quarter Sessions.<sup>42</sup> He was elected as an assemblyman for New Castle County in 1699, along with another neighbor, Adam Peterson.<sup>43</sup> His second known wife was Tuenkie, named in the 1718 sale of land when they sold another portion of the Appoquinimink land.<sup>44</sup>

In a chancery deposition taken 16 December 1722 regarding property rights, John Heally gave testimony that revealed unexpected details about his early life:<sup>45</sup>

John Heally of Blackbird Creek in the County of Newcastle, gent. aged sixty nine years or thereabouts [calculated birth 1653] ....describes how in the latter part of November or first part of December, 1674, when he was a servant of a certain John Maull, Sr., 'who then begun to Draw his affairs out of the Province of Maryland by the way of Bohemia Landing to Delaware Bay,' together with his master he sailed up Bohemia River....

John as a "servant" in this sense is likely in an apprenticeship relationship. Or he may have been transported for headrights (free land offered by Colonial Maryland as early as the 1630s). Many who took this opportunity would trade service (and the right to land) to the one offering transportation. Many of these people were from the artisan classes, not the poor or criminal.<sup>46</sup> The description that Heally came from Maryland is confirmed by other records. In 1694, James Read sold a tract on Poplar Hill (off of Hangman's Creek, a branch of Appoquinimink Creek) in New Castle County, Delaware, to John Heally of "Cecil County in the province of Maryland."<sup>47</sup>

The next sections will review the investigations into what were hoped to be research that might show evidence of relationships with the Vardemans: the Petersons and Heally children.

Heally and Petersons. A year before his Poplar Hill purchase, in 1693 John Heally "of Maryland" was the trustee for a tract of land granted as a wedding gift from the groom, James Read, to his intended bride, Anna Phiana, daughter of Adam Peterson. The property was to be hers alone, without division by his estate after the death of Read.<sup>48</sup> Heally would later stand as a trustee for another Peterson. In 1706, John Heally "of Apoquinemy" granted to Nicholas Lockyer a plantation at the Horseneck (also known as the "Peerdehook"). The situation was that in 1699, Nicholas Lockyer and his wife Elizabeth had sold this land to Heally for his use in trust. The contingency was that if Elizabeth predeceased her husband, she could bequeath the property to others in her will. The 1706 deed stated that she had died and devised £100 to Heally, and that the plantation should now be sold to cover this cost and to cover the costs of monetary bequests to the children of Andrew Peterson, deceased. The deed further said that Nicholas Lockyear met all the costs and Heally was satisfied to keep the land.<sup>49</sup>

Vardeman & Peterson Connections? The children of Adam Peterson were listed in the division of property when his son Andrew died in 1741. Besides Andrew, the only other children were Adam Jr and Hermania (deceased by 1741, wife of Von Bebbber).<sup>50</sup> If Margaret, wife of John<sup>1</sup> Vardeman had been a Peterson daughter, her children should have been listed with the division of the estate, but were not. Regardless, any Peterson connections should continue to be watched.

Heally, Peterson, and Vardeman at Church. The Church of England at St. Anne's was built in 1705. On 24 September of that year, 26 men together pledged £50 sterling to support bringing a Church of England minister to their parish. Among the names were John Heally and William Dyer [neighbors of John<sup>1</sup>].<sup>51</sup> The congregation's first minister wrote that the people of Appoquinimink were in danger of being tempted to the other churches, which he listed as Presbyterian, Anabaptist, and a "Crowd of Heathen called Quakers." Unfortunately, member lists were not found from this time.<sup>52</sup> In 1724 another letter was sent requesting a replacement minister after the first had left. On it were the names of Andrew Peterson, James Heally, Daniel Heally [likely sons of John Heally], and John Wardeman [John<sup>2</sup>].<sup>53</sup>

This leads one to contemplate that although other children of John<sup>1</sup> attached themselves to the Old Swedes Church, that does not necessarily make the whole Vardeman family Swedish.<sup>54</sup> Many families in the area were of mixed origin, English, Dutch, and Swedish. John<sup>1</sup> and John<sup>2</sup> were allied with John Heally, who was clearly Church of England. The Petersons who were Swedish, also joined St. Anne's, at least some of them in the second generation. John<sup>2</sup> may have continued with St. Anne's because of personal reasons, or perhaps because one of his parents was of English origin.

Same source, James Senexon and Margaret Werdeman married 20 January 1730, p. 332.

Children of John Heally. The death of John Heally was not found nor was probate.<sup>55</sup> Because John was “of Blackbird Creek” rather than Appoquinimink in 1722, and no deed records could be found for him after 1718, it is presumed that he lived with relatives until his death. Born about 1653 and married first before 1685, any children would be born after about 1674 (if Heally married after age 21) and before 1685, or possibly after if he wed again before his last marriage to Tuenkie (he had land sales in between with no wife listed releasing dower).

The most likely children are James and Daniel Heally found at St. Anne’s Church. Daniel “Hailey” owned property on the east side of the Kings Road, parts of two tracts called Eckmon and another called Reyles Industrey “originally taken by John Webster” which he purchased of William Cardon in 1727. It was sold by Daniel’s heirs in 1737.<sup>56</sup>

Implications of Relationship with Heally. John Heally could have played a larger role in the lives of the Vardemans than previously presumed. While John<sup>1</sup> could simply have purchased his land from Heally, there is also the possibility that they could have had a relationship. One of the sons of John<sup>1</sup> attended the same church as Heally, which indicates that the ties to the Swedish community were flexible. The potential sons of John Heally, James and Daniel, attended the same church as John<sup>2</sup> and Daniel lived in the Blackbird Creek area relatively close to John<sup>2</sup> and William<sup>3</sup> (see Image 3). Could Margaret, wife of John<sup>1</sup>, been a daughter or other relative of John Heally? Or, was John<sup>1</sup> Vardeman a fellow servant with John Heally, brought to the new world via Maryland?

FUTURE RESEARCH

Christopher<sup>1</sup>

The potential for a man of the same generation as John<sup>1</sup> to be identified is extremely important. Time should be spent researching the people and area surrounding William Boon of Philadelphia to discover how he was associated with a Christopher Vardeman. Personal factors (age, associates, properties, etc.) for this Christopher will help determine if he is a separate man as theorized or if he is the son of John<sup>1</sup>.

Maryland & Maull

The implication that John Heally, and potentially his descendants, had such close associations with the Vardemans must be pursued. In particular, it could be that Heally and Vardeman both came from Maryland, and both had associations with John Maull. He may be the same John "Moll" found in multiple references in the book Records of the Court of New Castle County, Delaware, 1681-1699, which should be collated, assessed, and followed.

For instance, a witness found in the course of the research to a 1670 Baltimore County, Maryland, land conveyance was a "William Vandeman."<sup>57</sup> Incidentally, this is the same area that the Websters lived in, but reference was not made to it earlier as not enough connection is available for even that link.
